Princeton Captain Gives Views of Yale and Harvard.

ATTACKS ARE DIFFERENT

Crimson Team Strengthened with Huntington at Centre and Storer at Tackle.

Princeton, Nov. 20.—(By Telegram to The Tribune.) Captain Eddie Hart, of Princeton, says that in his opinion neither Harvard nor Yale can score by straight rushing in their coming battle on Saturday and that the game will be decided by an open and probably unexpected play. In view of the fact that Hart led his Tigers to victory over both Harvard and Yale, his ideas on the relative merits of the two eleven are interesting. He says under his own signature in the "Boston Globe":

The Harvard team on the attack is the strongest I have ever seen. They are having built up its offense on the lines of the old-style football. Harvard plays a fast, hard game, and they are very strong in the line. The Yale team is a unit on offense. The weakness of the Harvard attack is its lack of versatility. From tackle to end, they are strong but weak on the ends and in the open style of play.

While Harvard scored on Princeton on Saturday, they executed forward pass, nevertheless I do not consider the Harvard team as being in the use of the forward pass as a regular weapon.

The Yale attack, on the other hand, is built along a different line. The old-fashioned line-breaking style of game, so famous at Yale under the pull-and-push type of play, has been practically eliminated. The Yale attack is developed and built upon the shift play, developed in its infancy by Glenn Warner and elaborated and improved by Minnesota.

The shift is good for swing plays outside of tackle or around the end, but weak for line plunging. The Yale shift is dependent upon the speed of the linemen in getting to the line of scrimmage, and upon the variety of formation, which can be used in shifting the line.

Yale backfield get around the runner in good style and put the defensive line out of the play much better and faster than do the Harvard backs. To sum up, in the running game I consider Harvard much stronger than Yale. In the passing game, Harvard is correspondingly better in plays outside of tackle and around the ends. A team of Yale, should attack any man Harvard has, while the Harvard backs can catch punts better than the Yale backfield men.

Weakness, the handling of punts by the backfield, and unless remedied will prove fatal to the Harvard ends follow the ball well.

According to a number of good judges who saw the Harvard-Dartmouth game on Saturday, the Crimson team has been strengthened by the eleventh hour changes. The backfield, which carried the brilliant tackle, was injured in the Princeton struggle. It looked like a dangerous move to send Storer from center to tackle, and Huntington from fullback to center so late in the season, more particularly as the latter weighs only 165 pounds and is rather light for the pivotal position. The change was possible, however, to use Blackall, a good punter, in the backfield, who is counted on to lend much assistance to Felton in kicking against Yale.

Fredley Dean, in commenting on these three players after the Dartmouth game, said: Huntington made just one mistake. This occurred when he made a low pass to Frothingham, who had been rushed into play before the line of scrimmage. Huntington, in this rather long field goal, outside of this Huntington's passing was perfect. All right, Huntington is a very able Blackall and Reynolds to answer very convincingly the Crimson requirements at fullback.

Storer, at right tackle, is not Gardner, but he played well and is an active, aggressive forward. He is a good punter, by experience and weight. In the Crimson backfield Blackall did the best work. His punting was excellent, and the game was strictly a kicking game, with each side watching for errors by the other fellows.

It turns out that Dartmouth's chief weakness against Harvard on Saturday, when beaten by a score of 5 to 3, was poor punting. This was rather surprising, inasmuch as Morey and Llewellyn did excellent work in this respect against Princeton when both placed their kicks in a way which made it possible for the ends, Daley and Dana, to cover the ball with consistent accuracy. The wet, soggy ball may have had much to do with this short punting. Harvard punts a kick, as one critic says, amounted to little more than a sidekick. It was a blocked punt, too, which brought about Dartmouth's defeat, although a poor pass from the center was partially responsible for this.

The Dartmouth eleven wound up its season on Saturday, and again it is said that it was one of the best ever developed at Hanover. In the final summing up it is sure to get a ranking close to the top, and not worse than fourth or fifth. If Yale beats Harvard fourth is about the best position it can reach, as no doubt the ranking will then read: Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth and Carleton. West Point or Annapolis are the only other eleven which might drive it down a point more. In view of the fact that Dartmouth at all intents and purposes played Princeton to a no-score tie, it is likely that the ranking of football will give the Tigers a victory. It can be readily seen how evenly matched the leading eleven are this year. Frank Cavanaugh proved himself an able coach and Daley a good captain and strong leader. With Hogsett in good condition it is quite possible that Dartmouth might have turned the tables on both Princeton and Harvard. He played remarkable football, hand-dipped as he was by an injured shoulder, and must be considered in making up an all-American team.

Fred Murphy, captain of the Yale baseball team two or three years ago, and a powerful backstop on the football eleven for three seasons, has joined the list of those who are opposed to the rule now in force which makes it possible for a bounding ball to count as a goal from the field. In talking with him at New Haven on Saturday he put himself on record as being unalterably opposed to any change, which put a premium on luck or chance. "The game is too full now of loose, hazardous plays," was the way he expressed it.

Fred Daley, captain of the Yale eleven last year, proved conclusively that he knows how to coach as well as how to play by developing a strong, well balanced team at Williams from material that was said to be the weakest and poorest in Williamstown for several years. The eleven wound up its season on Saturday by defeating its old rival, Amherst, in a way that left no doubt as to the merits of the two teams. This victory stamped the Williams season a success, following as it did a victory over New York University by one point and a defeat at the hands of the Cornell team by the same narrow margin.

Tom Shevlin, the Yale coach, who came on from the West to perfect the so-called Minnesota shift, stayed in New York yesterday. He is commuting, as he put it, between this city and New Haven, preferring to spend his evenings in or near the Waldorf. He said yesterday that the Yale players know about all the football they can be taught, and that so far as he knew the work this week would be light, although a good stiff scrimmage may be on the card for to-day. Tom Shevlin is a man the strong ideas about the game and the rules. He thinks that the defense must be weakened to improve the game, as so many others do, and he has some recommendations to bring this about if the rules committee will consider them.

It begins to look as if the Navy eleven would be a slight favorite over the Army for their annual game in Philadelphia on Saturday. In playing the powerful Pennsylvania State team to a no-score tie, with an eleven made up largely of substitutes, the midshipmen proved that they would be ready for the test. It was the first game this year that Pennsylvania State did not win, and games have been played with Cornell and Pennsylvania, among others.

It was learned yesterday that one of the three penalties imposed against Princeton in the Yale game on Saturday was for delaying the game in the third period and not for interference in the neutral zone, as was generally reported. HERBERT.

NO KIND WORD FOR CORNELL Gets Hard Practice Instead of Lay-Off.

(By Telegram to The Tribune.) Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 20.—A disgruntled staff of coaches took the field to-day. The coaches took the field literally, and it can be truthfully said that no member of the "varsity" squad was in command. They are at present thoroughly disgusted, but are full of a determination to win the team back to Cornell for Thanksgiving Day.

"The Cornell football team," it was said to-day by a critic who is in town and who saw the game with Chicago, "was nothing more nor less than a fizzle. The variety of football it produced could have been swamped by the average high school team. It was obviously, even from the stands, a case of individual conceit and conceit in general. Even in the time of defeat, when Cornell players were leaving the dressing quarters after the game, strains of the latest operatic music were heard coming from one or two of the worst offenders. That is exactly why Cornell did not win on Saturday, and it is exactly why Cornell will not win on Thanksgiving Day unless Dan Reed is able to whip the men into a realization of the stern reality which faces them. Having defeated a strong aggregation like Michigan one week, it seemed like child's play to face Chicago's smaller men, but good things sometimes come in small parcels, and I think that it was the most just punishment and the very best thing that could have happened to Cornell, that the Cornell team administered on Marshall Field last Saturday."

The spirit of the above criticism permeates the whole community since the followers of the team have arrived in town and the true state of affairs during the game has been spread abroad.

On Alumni Field this afternoon no attention was given to the fact that to-day was Monday. The game began as usual, but it took about ten seconds of time after Reed walked on the field for every man on it to "feel" his presence. Not a minute was lost. Directions flew, and in a short time H. J. DuVal, '06, who reached Ithaca this morning in answer to a hurry call, with Ray Vanorman, had those who the field under was on hand running down the field under side kicks, and every element of the game which involved their positions. Dan Reed, with the linemen facing the backs, the former spread out in single file, made repeated efforts to down the backs as they dodged through them. This manner of work was kept up until five o'clock, when all the field was filled.

Jess Whyte's place was filled by both Stimson and Miller. These men have undeterred the injured center all season, and one of them will be chosen to fill his place—probably the last named man, although it is most likely that each will see service on Franklin Field. Erlich, who was knocked out in the second period, was back in the line for a couple of days, but Jack Mowley said to-night that rest would put him in condition by the middle or latter part of the week.

PRINCETON TO CELEBRATE Mass Meeting and Bonfire in Honor of Team.

(By Telegram to The Tribune.) Princeton, N. J., Nov. 20.—Princeton is planning one of the greatest celebrations ever held in that university for Thursday night in honor of the football team that completed its season last Saturday without being defeated.

A monster mass meeting will be held before the bonfire, at which "Big Bill" Edwards, Keene Fitzpatrick, Captain Hart, Coach Roper and Professor J. Duncan Spaeth will speak. It is expected that many of the alumni will be back to help celebrate the occasion of what Princeton men fondly hope is merely the beginning of a new era, and that a winning one, in Princeton football.

Elaborate preparations are being made. To make the bonfire the biggest ever held, instead of having one round pile, it is planned to have four piles built on a square foundation.

From the line-up of this afternoon it is indicated that the final arrangement of the players will not be settled until the day of the game, and that a narrow margin separates the value in the eyes of the coaches of candidates for a number of positions. The first backfield scrimmage this afternoon was: Gluchist, quarter; Dalton and Nichols, halves, and Rodes, full. McCreary was at right end, and was later replaced by Overesch. Cochran, Bates and Byrd all had an opportunity in the backfield at different times this afternoon. Herman Olcott, who coached New York University this year, arrived to-day and will assist the midshipmen this week.

GETTING TEAMS IN TRIM Final Polishing for Both Yale and Harvard Elevens.

(By Telegram to The Tribune.) New Haven, Nov. 20.—Yale resumed her usual practice work to-day, following the disappointing Princeton game on Saturday. The squad has taken the defeat excellently. There has been no wailing and gnashing of teeth. The men simply say they were licked; that's all. The undergraduates seem to be more behind the team since the defeat than before, and they feel strongly that the better team was licked by the fortunes of the new game. There is real dissatisfaction over the result of the game, and some of the players said to-day they would rather be defeated and feel defeated than simply have the wrong end of the score against them.

The general cry is now to take it out on Harvard. Brooks and Kistler have not returned, and the team will play a much harder and more desperate game than would have been the case if they had defeated Princeton. The whole team feels it has something to retrieve next Saturday, and that a decisive defeat of Harvard would go a long way toward accomplishing this.

The practice to-day was light. Hardly any of the coaches appeared. Field Morris, Brooks and Kistler have not returned, and the team will play a much harder and more desperate game than would have been the case if they had defeated Princeton. The whole team feels it has something to retrieve next Saturday, and that a decisive defeat of Harvard would go a long way toward accomplishing this.

DELEGATES AGAINST RULE TO PREVENT BIG CLUBS PREYING ON THE SMALLER ONES.

Gustavus T. Kirby, for years a close student of track and field athletics, was elected president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Philadelphia, president of the Middle Atlantic Association. Mr. Kirby was asked to withdraw from the campaign with the promise of support another year, but this he refused to do and was defeated by a vote of 22 to 6, the delegates from his own association alone supporting him.

A. J. Lill, of Boston, was elected vice-president; Dr. R. M. Hopkinson, of Baltimore, second vice-president; George James, San Francisco, third vice-president; J. J. O'Connor, St. Louis, fourth vice-president, and James E. Sullivan, of this city, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Kirby is an attorney. He was president of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America in 1905, and since that time has been chairman of the executive committee. He is a graduate of Columbia University, and was captain of the track and field team and also captain of the football team while at that college.

FAST TRIALS AT SAVANNAH De Palma's Mercedes Makes Best Time in Early Practice.

(By Telegram to The Tribune.) Savannah, Ga., Nov. 20.—Official practice for the road races of next Monday and Tuesday began to-day, and although the accidents that occurred early rendered the other drivers cautious, some of the laps made proved that the course is extremely fast.

Ralph de Palma was the star of the day's work, urging his 50-horsepower Mercedes around the 17.14 mile circuit on one of his three laps in 13:40.2, about six seconds faster than any other lap of the day. Low figures were also recorded by Bergdoll, Hearne and Henery, of the Benz team; Matson and Wagner, with Flets, and Grant, piloting a Lozier. The fastest times follow:

BRAGG (Flat), 15:50, 15:09.1, 23:49.3; Matson (Flat), 20:17.2, 36:17, 14:38.2; 15:09.2, 16:15.1; Bergdoll (Benz), 15:41.3, 13:47.4, 13:54.1; Hearne (Benz), 15:30, 13:47, 13:42.2; Wagner (Flat), 14:31.4; Henery (Benz), 13:48.3, 13:04; Wishart (Mercedes), 16:33.3, 15:10.3, 23:43.3; 20:17.4; Parker (Flat), 13:57.3, 15:50.3; 17:20.4, 16:23.3; Disbrow (Pope-Hartford), 15:45.2; Grant (Lozier), 14:07.1, 15:02.1; De Palma (Mercedes), 17:41.4, 13:40.2, 15:27.3, and Mulford (Lozier), 33:02.4.

BOXING BOUTS OF THE NIGHT Bill Hurley and Sailor Burke to Meet in Brooklyn.

"Wild Bill" Hurley, the Glen Falls middleweight, will make his first appearance in a local arena when he faces "Sailor" Burke, of Brooklyn, for ten rounds at the Royal Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, to-night. Hurley is one of the most aggressive middleweights in the country and has yet to meet his master, Burke. Smith was originally scheduled to meet Larry English, but the latter broke his hand in a training bout and was forced to cancel his engagement.

"Montana Dan" Sullivan, the middleweight, and Walter Coffey, of California, were booked for ten rounds at the Fairmont Athletic Club, of The Bronx, to-night. The bout gives every promise of being a slashing affair. Both are hard hitters and fast, aggressive fighters.

Brown's Gymnasium will be the scene of stirring action to-night, when Tommy Houck, one of Philadelphia's best featherweights, crosses gloves with "Young" Dyson, of Providence. The boys met some time ago, and Houck won in impressive style.

MANY GAMES FOR CLINTON A long schedule has been announced for the De Witt Clinton basketball team. Of the seventeen games arranged twelve will have a bearing on the high school championship.

November 25, Cathedral College, at Cathedral College; December 2, Public School 62, 8, Mount Vernon H. S.; 12, Bryant H. S.; 16, Manual Training H. S.; 23, Jamaica H. S.; 30, January 6, H. S.; at Newark, 6, Stuyvesant H. S.; 13, Erasmus Hall H. S.; 20, Richmond Hill H. S.; 27, Eastern District H. S.; 31, Adelphi Academy, at Adelphi; February 3, Commercial H. S.; 10, Townsend Harris H. S.; 17, Flushing H. S.; 24, High School of Commerce, Newtown H. S.

FINANCIALLY, also, the Amateur Athletic Union is in better condition than ever before. The registration fees showed a slight decrease from last year, but that is due to the fact that the fee was cut in half. The total disbursements for the year were $4,575.96, as against $5,966.34 for 1910. The total receipts for 1911 were $3,710.98, an increase of $3,540.84 over the receipts for 1910. The boxing championships, held under the direction of the Boston Athletic Association, made a profit of $1,785.86, the largest sum of money ever received from a championship meeting.

Everett C. Brown, the retiring president, spoke in glowing terms of the union, and in his annual report said: "There can be only one governing body of sport in this country, and with the spirit of progressiveness it has always shown, and its willingness to meet existing conditions and situations that may arise from time to time, there is no reason why the Amateur Athletic Union should not be the controlling body in amateur sport for generations to come."

In speaking of small troubles which have arisen throughout the country from time to time, Mr. Brown said that the policy pursued in giving all the associations throughout the country a vote at the meetings through their representatives would go far toward settling all disputes, and that the course which would prevent any serious trouble ever arising.

FINANCIAL RECORD, some world's and some American, were established during the year. Of these, half a dozen are still under consideration before the application will be accepted and the record placed on the books. Prominent among the brilliant performances were the remarkable feat of Joe Paul Jones, of Cornell, who set the world's mark at 4:15.25 for the one mile in the intercollegiate championship games at Cambridge, and the two mile of T. S. Berna, also of Cornell, at the same meeting, when he covered the distance in 9:25.15.

James E. Sullivan, Bartow S. Weeks, F. W. Ruben, Edward T. Hart, C. O. Nilsson and F. J. Delaney were elected delegates to the Metropolitan Association, while A. G. Mills, Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, Charles H. Carter, F. V. Skiff and C. Hughes were elected delegates-at-large.

WEBB CARTER BEATS TYOSA Wins Match Race from H. L. Bell's Horse.

There was a big gathering of society folk at Belmont Park Terminal yesterday for the special match race at three miles for hunters between Webb Carter, Mrs. Payne Whitney's six-year-old bay gelding, and Henry L. Bell's Tyosa, a bay gelding which has competed in many of the Long Island hunt meets. Both horses carried 165 pounds.

Webb Carter was ridden by Charles Appleton, and Mr. Bell rode his own horse, F. S. Von Stade, of the Meadow Brook Farm. The race was a close one, and the judges were William C. Hayes and Algernon Craven, of Virginia. Webb Carter had the better of the race for the first mile, but was overtaken by Tyosa at the Liverpool.

Mr. Bell by good judgment and fine riding had his own hand, and held the lead to the finish, winning by half a length.

Plan Strenuous Season for Racquet Players Annual Tournament to Open at Princeton Club in December.

Experts with the racket will set the ball rolling on the squash courts of the Princeton Club, Gramercy Park, in the opening tournament of the season, scheduled for December 14, under the direction of the National Squash Tennis Association. At a meeting of the officers of the association and Herbert S. Satterlee, Harvard club, held recently the tournament and championship schedule for the coming season was arranged. It will be followed by the metropolitan interclub championship series and by the national championship tournament.

John W. Prentiss, of the Harvard club, president of the association, presided at the meeting, and the other officers—J. O. Low, Heights Casino, vice-president; Charles M. Bull, Jr., Crescent Athletic Club, treasurer; Dr. Alfred Stillman, 20, Harvard club, secretary, and the executive committee, William H. T. Hahn, Philadelphia Racquet Club; John C. Neely, University Club, Chicago; Frank Kiddle, Montclair Athletic Club; Dr. C. W. Hawley, Bridgeport University Club, and Frederick S. Keeler, Columbia University club—were represented. They planned the handicap with the view to drawing out the full strength of squash players from the clubs represented in the national association, which also includes the Racquet and Tennis Club, Tuxedo Club, Princeton Club, Aramits, Baltusrol, Englewood Club and others.

The annual metropolitan interclub championship series, which was won last season by the Harvard club team, will begin on Tuesday, January 9, and continue to Wednesday, February 14. Four teams will be represented in the series, including Harvard, the Columbia University club, Heights Casino, of Brooklyn, and the Princeton Casino, of Brooklyn, and the Princeton Casino. The national championship tournament is to be scheduled for an early date in March, probably on the Harvard club courts, where the tournament was decided last April, when Dr. Alfred Stillman, 20, won the title.

The schedule of the interclub series follows: January 9—Columbia vs. Heights Casino; January 16—Princeton vs. Columbia; January 23—Columbia vs. Princeton; January 30—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 3—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 10—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 17—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 24—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 1—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 8—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 15—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 22—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 29—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 5—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 12—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 19—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 26—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 3—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 10—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 17—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 24—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 31—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 7—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 14—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 21—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 28—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 4—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 11—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 18—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 25—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 2—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 9—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 16—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 23—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 30—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 4—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 11—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 18—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 25—Columbia vs. Princeton.

John W. Prentiss said yesterday that the prospects for four months of keen sport were excellent. In addition to the regular events, a great number of special team matches were being arranged by the club. He regarded the handicap tournament as especially favorable for bringing out new players. A. W. Riley, of the Princeton club, will act as referee of the handicap matches, while the marks of the players competing will be determined by a committee composed of Frederick S. Keeler, Columbia club; J. O. Low, Heights Casino, and Herbert S. Satterlee, Harvard club. The entry list for the handicap will close on Saturday, December 3.

"If it is a success this year, we will make the handicap a national handicap tournament next year," said Mr. Prentiss. "The handicapping committee, Mr. Prentiss, has played a lot of interclub squash in New York, and with the assistance of Peron, of the Harvard club, who has seen practically every squash player, it ought to get up a list of handicaps that will make the outcome of the tournament very uncertain."

The teams for the metropolitan championship will consist of seven men, unless by mutual agreement a five-man team is satisfactory. Dr. Alfred Stillman, 20, John W. Prentiss, runner-up for the national title; Malcolm D. Whitman, former national lawn tennis champion; Grenville Clark, former racquet champion, and other leaders will again play for Harvard.

For Columbia, Frank Kiddle, H. H. Boyesen, R. E. Wigham and Lyle E. Mahan will head the teams. Princeton will be represented by A. W. Riley, Harold Imbrie, S. H. Bird and Howard T. Homan as the main strings of the team.

The schedule of the interclub series follows: January 9—Columbia vs. Heights Casino; January 16—Princeton vs. Columbia; January 23—Columbia vs. Princeton; January 30—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; February 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; March 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 3—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 10—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 17—Columbia vs. Princeton; April 24—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 1—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 8—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 15—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 22—Columbia vs. Princeton; May 29—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 5—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 12—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 19—Columbia vs. Princeton; June 26—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 3—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 10—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 17—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 24—Columbia vs. Princeton; July 31—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 7—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 14—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 21—Columbia vs. Princeton; August 28—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 4—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 11—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 18—Columbia vs. Princeton; September 25—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 2—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 9—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 16—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 23—Columbia vs. Princeton; October 30—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 6—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 13—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 20—Columbia vs. Princeton; November 27—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 4—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 11—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 18—Columbia vs. Princeton; December 25—Columbia vs. Princeton.

EASY FOR ABE ATTELL MR. KOHLER IN THE DARK

Willie Jones No Match for the Featherweight Champion.

Abe Attell, the featherweight champion of the world, had the easiest kind of a time in beating Willie Jones, of Brooklyn, in a ten-round bout at the Olympia Athletic Club, of Harlem, last night. Jones was a game and tried hard, but landed scarcely a dozen clean punches.

Attell knocked him down and almost out in the fifth round, but took his rival's recovery in the fifth round, and let his rival recover. It was merely a case of a courageous novice fighting a past master of the game. Jones had little outside of a rush and wild swing for the head. The crafty champion lay back, and swaying away or leaping in quickly shot his punches home with rare precision.

"Spikle" Kennedy, the English middleweight, was saved from a knockout at the hands of Jim Smith, the Westchester middleweight, in the second round of a ten-round bout at the Brooklyn Beach Athletic Club last night. Smith tore right into his opponent at the start and beat him so badly that Kennedy's seconds tossed a towel into the ring in token of defeat.

Willie Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, one time a contender for the lightweight honors, was accidentally fouled by Johnny Dohan, also of Brooklyn, in the fifth round of a ten-round bout at the Carlyle Athletic Club last night. The bout was a whirlwind while it lasted, with honors practically even.

"Young" Wagner, the Italian bantamweight of the lower West Side, and "Young" O'Leary, he of the Ghetto district, engaged in a furious bout of ten rounds at the Fordham Athletic Club last night. Public opinion differed somewhat after the contest as to who was the winner, but to those who sat at the ringside it was generally agreed that the aggressiveness and hard hitting of Wagner earned him the decision, had one been rendered. The Italian was too powerful for his opponent, and forced the pace at all times and punished his opponent's body with short, lancing punches. He opened a deep cut over O'Leary's left eye with a vicious right to the head, but the latter boxed prettily and saved himself from much punishment for the remainder of the round.

A REPROOF.

"Father," replied the young man with sporty clothes, "I wish you wouldn't mention it. Your non-union sentiment is liable to make you unpopular—Washington Star.
